

HIGHER EDUCATION

ST. EDWARD'S UNIVERSITY

BUSINESS PROGRAM ESTABLISHED IN FRANCE

St. Edward's is returning to the homeland of its founders, France, to establish an educational program with a business bent.

The university, which was established by French priests, plans to offer such courses as project management, business English and information technology in Angers, in the Loire Valley.

A study-abroad component and a master's degree in business could be added later. The courses are intended for French and U.S. students.

Office, classroom and housing space are to be leased in Angers, and St. Edward's plans to collaborate with two nearby schools, Université Catholique de l'Ouest and Institut Bois-Robert.

The project is part of a global understanding initiative at St. Edward's that is intended to foster international experiences and a worldwide perspective.

---

Austin American Statesman

Metro & State

Friday, March 21, 2008